The emergence of local entrepreneurship in different sectors of the North Eastern Region of India is expected to bring economic development in a significant way. The region abounds in resources that have the potential to render a progressive outlook. In order to give opportunities to the rise of enterprises, there are some governmental and non-governmental autonomous organizations and bodies involved in providing institutional support to the aspiring entrepreneurs of the region. These institutes help the new entrepreneurs by imparting training and extending credit. Entrepreneurship has become a decisive aspect of change in the region, empowering individuals to seek new opportunities. The North Eastern Region encompasses a variety of nationally and internationally unexplored tradable resources and efforts have to be made to exploit these resources of the different states and tap into other potential areas. The states within the region need brilliant planning and strategic efforts, concentrating on areas of strength and available resources.
